BALL CLUB IN NEW HANDS.

George O. Houston Consents to Act as Manager of the Team for the Season.

The management of the Roanoke baseball club has been placed in the hands of George O. Houston, who will in the future look after the interests of that organization both at home and abroad This action was taken by the board of governors of the Roanoke Ath letic Club yesterday evening after the receipt of the resignation of H. P. O'Hagan, who has been serving as manager, captain and player since the com-

O'Hagan, who has been serving as manager, captain and player since the opening of the league.

In his letter to John M. Payne, the president of the Athletic Club, Mr. O'Hagan says that the combined duties were too great for him and out of justice to himself and the club he feels that he should no longer hold the position of manager.

were too great for him and out of justice to himself and the club he feels that he should no longer hold the position of manager.

Mr. Houston, who has consented to take the management of the club, is particularly well fitted for the position. He is well posted upon the game even to its most minute details and his exexecutive ability is such as will insure its proper management as to finances, players and general business arrangements. He is a man in whom the 'cranks" of the city will place much confidence. His work in connection with the team commenced last night.

The Roanoke team is expected to do some effective work from now on. The club has some good material, and is especially strong in pitchers. What is evidently needed is better team work, and this Mr. Houston will probably see is remedied. Mr. Houston, it is said, will communicate with several players who are anxious to come to Roanoke, and of whom good reports are received, especially as to their batting ability.

The members of the club received their salaries yesterday but there was some fault finding as to the amounts coming due them. There was considerable talk among some of the members about resigning but it is more than probable that no resignations will be handed in. Simes, who has been playing second base, left for his home in Columbus, Ohio, yesterday afternoon. He had not been signed by the management and gave as an excuse for his departure that his mother was sick.

No game was played with the Staunton team yesterday, rain interfering. A

No game was played with the Staunton team yesterday, rain interfering. A small number were at the grounds to see the game but a heavy shower came down just as the clubs were ready to play and the game was postponed. The teams play this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

IN THE STATE LEAGUE.

Richmond Defeated by Norfolk in a Well Played Game.

Nonfolk, May 22 .- Richmond was defeated by the home team to-day in a well played game. The feature of the game was West's good stop of a liner struck by Lanser, of the home team. The ball was two feet over his head, but West jumped up and stopped it with his left hand, thus making of a three-bagger a one base hit. The score:

Lynchburg Again Unable to Score.

PETERSBURG, May 22.—Lynchburg tried in vain to score to day, but without avail, as they were met at every point by the superb playing of the local team. The score:

The yourse A Father's Wise Plan For Getting His Mon-

son who had been so long the pride of his life, "have you as yet had any thought of marriage?"

The young man thoughtfully lifted his head, and his frank face betrayed at once the nobleness of his character as he firmly replied: "No, father, I have only been engaged. Nothing more serious than this has ever entered my thoughts."

"Then," said his father, a look of great satisfaction coming into his face, "nothing could be more fortunate. Although I have long been considered well to do, my son, I must tell you the truth. With the exception of the house I have placed in your mother's name, itself heavily mortgaged, nothing remains of my vast fortune but a few paltry dollars. It has long been my desire that you should ally yourself with some family of unquestioned wealth, and now that you tell me that your heart is free I believe I may say that I have found for you the right girl. Her father's vast possessions will undoubtedly descend to her, and thus you will be independent for life."

"Father," said the young man, his face suffused with that lovable obedience which is such a fine attribute of manly character, "I am sure I have always cone as you said, and if I can please you in the matter I will gladly do so. But who can it be?"

"You remember, Henry," replied his father, "the architect that built our house?"

"Yes, sir," said Henry; "I know him well. I have often seen him in the back parlor on an evening playing solitaire with the notes you had given him during the day. What has he to do with it?"

The good old man's form shook with great joy as he tenderly embraced his boy. "Henry, my dear son," he cried, "I have just heard that he has a marriageable daughter."—Life.

"Nothing succeeds like success," runs the saying, but there are times when a lack of success has been of great value.

In the time of William III Mr. Tredenham, a poet, was taken before the Earl of Nottingham on suspicion of having treasonable papers. "I am only a poet," protested the poor man, "and these pages are only my roughly sketched play."

The earl, however, carefully looked over the papers in question before liberating the poet. Finally he returned the sheets to the delighted author.
